Contents:

Abstract v
Acknowledgments vi
Abbreviations xi

PART ONE: BRANDON ON CONCEPTS, OBJECTIVITY, SUBJECTIVITY AND SOCIALITY

Chapter One: Conceptuality and Normativity 1
   Introduction 1
   1.1. Kant on Intentionality and Normativity 4
   1.2. Sellars 11
   1.3. Brandom on Conceptuality and Normativity 14
      1.3.1. The Primacy of a Normative Pragmatics 15
      1.3.2. Brandom’s Semantics 23

Chapter Two: Objectivity 40
   Introduction 40
   2.1. Kant on Objectivity and the Universal Validity of the Categories 42
   2.2. Fichte’s “Intersubjective” Turn Toward Objectivity 48
   2.3. Brandom on Objectivity 60

Chapter Three: Sociality, Subjectivity and Truth 95
   Introduction 95
   3.1. Sociality: I-Thou and I-We 95
   3.2. Subjectivity, Self-Consciousness and “I” – Fichte, then Brandom 111
   3.3. Truth 138

Chapter Four: Conclusion of Part 1 and Brandom’s Hegel 150
   4.1. Conclusion 150
   4.2. Brandom’s Hegel 151

PART TWO: HEGEL ON OBJECTIVITY, SUBJECTIVITY AND SOCIALITY

Chapter Five: Hegel 166
   Introduction 166
   5.1. Objectivity and Apperception 168
   5.2. The Constitution of the Thing in Property 186
   5.3. Being-for-Me and Being-Mine 195
PART THREE: A HEGELIAN CRITIQUE OF BRANDON

Chapter Six: Introduction to Part Three and the First-Person
- Introduction
- 6.1. The First-Person
- 6.2. Having a Perspective
- 6.3. Attributing a Perspective
- 6.4. Self-Recognition

Chapter Seven: The Second-Person
- Introduction
- 7.1. First and Second-Persons
- 7.2. Second and Third-Persons
- 7.3. Brandon’s Reply to Habermas

Chapter Eight: I, Thou and We
- Introduction
- 8.1. Review of Brandon on I-We Social Practices
- 8.2. Validity and Lifeworld
- 8.3. Tradition and Authority
- 8.4. Constitutive and Genetic Priority: Hegel and Teleology
- 8.5. Back to Brandon
- 8.6. Sociality Beyond Discourse

Chapter Nine: I, We and It
- Introduction
- 9.1. Deflationism, Phenomenalism, Propositionalism
- 9.2. Objective Idealism and Nominalism: Habermas
- 9.3. Nominalism and The Space of Reasons: Rödl and McDowell
- 9.4. Between Nominalism and Objective Idealism: Summary and Set-up
- 9.5. The Unboundedness of the Normative without the Unboundedness of the Conceptual: Heidegger
  - 9.5.1. Heidegger on Truth
  - 9.5.2. Heidegger Contra Brandon
  - 9.5.3. Nominalism and Space of Reasons Again

Chapter Ten: Hegel and Conclusion
- Introduction
- 10.1. Appearance, Truth and the Unboundedness of the Conceptual in Hegel
- 10.2. Conclusion: Brandon, German Idealism and Hegel