Table of Contents

Acknowledgments

Chapter 1. Introduction

Chapter 2. Theoretical background: governing religious, ethnic and gender differences

2.1 Introduction

2.2 State responses to multicultural challenges

2.3 A political-process approach to explain policy responses to the hijab

2.4 Design of the study

2.5 Data

2.6 Method of analysis

Part 1. Political-institutional context. Governing religious, ethnic and gender differences in France, the Netherlands and Germany

Chapter 3. The political systems in France, the Netherlands and Germany and a note on European institutions

3.1 Introduction

3.2 General characteristics of political opportunity structure in France, the Netherlands and Germany

3.2.1 Institutional characteristics

3.2.2 Party system and power constellations

3.3 Transnational opportunity structures: a note on the role of the ECHR and the ECJ

Chapter 4. Governing religious differences in France, the Netherlands and Germany

4.1 Introduction

4.2 State-church patterns

4.2.1 Religious cleavages

4.2.2 Laws, policies and governing strategies regulating state-church relations

4.2.3 Political allies for religious claims of recognition

4.3 Conclusion

Chapter 5. Governing immigrant integration and ethnic differences in France, the Netherlands and Germany

5.1 Introduction

5.2 Citizenship and migrant incorporation patterns

5.2.1 Cleavages around national identity

5.2.2 Laws, policies and governing strategies regulating migrant incorporation

5.2.3 Political allies for claims of equality and cultural recognition

5.3 Conclusion

Chapter 6. Governing gender differences in France, Germany and the Netherlands

6.1 Introduction

6.2 Gender and women’s emancipation patterns

6.2.1 Gender cleavages: political polarisation and mobilisation of gender

6.2.2 Laws, policies and institutions of gender