CONTENTS

List of Abbreviations xi

Foreword xiii

Introduction 1

1 Aims and Method 1
2 An ‘Aesthetic Sea-Change’ in American Literature 5
3 Outline of Primary Literary Works 10
4 Heuristic Perspectives 16
5 Outline of the Study 20

PART I

PROBLEMS

Chapter 1 Hyper reflexivity 27

Introduction 27

1 Factors of Heightened Contemporary Reflexivity 29
   1.1 Living in a Post-Traditional Order 30
   1.2 Pluralisation of Life-Worlds 32
   1.3 Contextual Nature of Warranted Beliefs 33
   1.4 Prevalence of Mediated Experience 34
   1.5 Transformation of Intimacy 36
Chapter 2 Endless Irony

Introduction

1 Irony as an Attitude towards Existence
   1.1 Kierkegaard: Irony as Attitude towards Existence
   1.2 Irony as Attitude towards Existence in Wallace and Eggers

2 Irony as Negative Independence
   2.1 Kierkegaard on Irony as Negative Independence
   2.2 Irony as Negative Independence in Wallace and Eggers

3 Endless Aesthetic Irony
   3.1 Kierkegaard on Endless Aesthetic Irony
   3.2 Endless Aesthetic Irony in Wallace and Eggers
   3.3 The Disintegration of the Self
   3.4 Skepticism

4 Meta-Irony
   4.1 Wallace's Meta-Irony?
   4.2 Meta-Irony from a Kierkegaardian Perspective
   4.3 Arguments against Meta-Irony in Wallace

Conclusion

Chapter 3 Problematic Fiction: John Barth

Introduction

1 Metafiction

2 Deconstruction and Metafiction
   2.1 Derrida: The Indispensable Illusion of Presence
   2.2 Construction and Undermining
   2.3 Overturning and Displacement
   2.4 The Endless Postponement of Meaning

Conclusion
PART II

ENGAGED FICTION

Chapter 5  Wittgenstein and Wallace: The Meaning of Fiction  149

1 Wittgenstein: The Temptation of Essences  151
2 Wittgenstein: The Irrelevance of Essences  155
   2.1 Ostensive Definition  156
   2.2 Private language  159
   2.3 Language as Life-Form: Wittgenstein’s ‘Games’ versus Derrida’s ‘Play’  162
3 The Virtues of the Late-Wittgensteinian Language View  163
   3.1 Hyperreflexive Solipsism vs. Community and Reality  163
   3.2 Ironic Skepticism vs. Reality and Trust  168
4 A Late-Wittgensteinian View of Fiction  172
   4.1 The Problem with the Traditional and Postmodernist View  173
   4.2 Wittgenstein: Fiction as Grammatical Investigation  175
   4.3 Wittgenstein: Fiction as Source of Paradigmatic Cases  177
Conclusion  178

ENGAGEMENT

Chapter 6  Sincerity  185

Introduction  185
1 Sincerity versus Authenticity 186
   1.1 Sincerity: Not for the Self, but for the Other? 187
   1.2 Authenticity: The True I is Autonomous 188
   1.3 The Consequences of Both Ideals 190
   1.4 ‘New Sincerity’ 192
2 Sincerity: A Sartrean, Existentialist Ideal 194
   2.1 Sartre: Good Faith and Bad Faith 195
   2.2 Sartre: The Role of Reflection 198
   2.3 Sartre: Sincerity – A Reconstruction 200
3 Cases Studies of Sincerity: The Fiction of Wallace, Eggers and Foer 204
   3.1 Good Faith: Mario Incandenza 204
   3.2 Good Faith: Oskar Schell 208
   3.3 Sincerity: Will Chmielewski 210
   3.4 Sincerity: Don Gately & Hal Incandenza 213
Conclusion 222

Chapter 7 Reality-Commitment 225
   Introduction 225
   1 The Realization of Choice: Freedom, Despair, Urgency 226
      1.1 Freedom 227
      1.2 Despair 229
      1.3 Urgency 233
   2 The Reality of the Self as Gift and Task 237
      2.1 Kierkegaard on the Gift and Task of Human Existence 237
      2.2 Gift and Task in the Works of Wallace, Eggers and Foer 239
   3 Reality as Repetition 244
      3.1 Repetition as Responsibility through Controlled, Ethical Irony 246
      3.2 Repetition versus Boredom 250
      3.3 Repetition as Transcendence 254
Conclusion 258

Chapter 8 Community 261
   Introduction 261
   1 Absurdity and Rebellion: Two Main Themes of Camus’s Thought 263
      1.1 The Absurd 263
      1.2 Rebellion 265
   2 The Role of the Other: Kierkegaard and Sartre versus Camus 267
      2.1 Kierkegaard and Sartre: The Neglect of the Other 267
      2.2 Camus: Community 270
   3 Discovering the Other: Wallace, Eggers and Foer 272
      3.1 The Transcendent Self 272
      3.2 Attention 274
      3.3 Trust 279
CONTENTS

4  Towards a Dialogic Community of Meaning 285
   4.1  An End to Solitude: ‘The Solidarity of Chains’ 285
   4.2  The Start of Meaning: ‘If We Are Not, Then I Am Not’ 290
Conclusion 294

Concluding Remarks 297
   Literature and Philosophy 298
   Existentialist Engagement 301
   Love Me Till My Heart Stops? 304

Works Cited 307

Acknowledgements 325

Summary 327

Samenvatting 337