Table of contents

Preface .................................................................................................................................................. 6

About this book ...................................................................................................................................... 7

Acknowledgements ................................................................................................................................. 9

Part I  Introduction

Chapter 1  A neglected issue in an evolving world

1.1. Decisive experiences ...................................................................................................................... 12
1.2. Changes that matter ...................................................................................................................... 14
    Box: Incidental returns of colonial cultural objects
1.3. Main questions and approaches .................................................................................................... 20

Chapter 2  On colonial cultural objects

2.1. Return ............................................................................................................................................ 24
2.2. Cultural objects .............................................................................................................................. 25
2.3. Typology of colonial cultural objects ............................................................................................ 30
    2.3.1. Gifts to colonial administrators and institutions .................................................................... 31
    2.3.2. Objects acquired during private expeditions ....................................................................... 31
    2.3.3. Objects acquired during military expeditions ..................................................................... 32
    2.3.4. Missionary collecting ........................................................................................................... 33
    2.3.5. Archives ............................................................................................................................... 35
    Box: Archives back to Suriname

Part II  Colonialism and cultural objects

Chapter 3  Colonial expansion

3.1. Early migration of objects to Europe ............................................................................................. 39
    Box: War booty during colonial expansion and its present whereabouts
3.2. Meagre protection .......................................................................................................................... 44

Chapter 4  Settler and exploitation colonialism

4.1. Peak in migration of objects .......................................................................................................... 46
    Box: Ancient Indonesian gifts dispersed
    Box: Relocating to preserve better: From Papua New Guinea to Australia
    Box: Cyprus and Dun Huang expeditions
    Box: War booty during settler and exploitation colonialism
4.2. Protection and preservation measures .......................................................................................... 57

Chapter 5  Decolonisation, the first claims and the ongoing seepage of objects

5.1. Whimsicalities in collecting .......................................................................................................... 60
    Box: (Pre-)independence returns
5.2. Early calls for return ..................................................................................................................... 65
    Box: (Pre-)independence returns
5.3. Drain of cultural objects before and after independence ........................................................... 67
    Box: Turkey and tainted objects
    Box: China and tainted objects
5.4. Decolonisation an unresolved conflict ......................................................................................... 70
Part III
Colonial cultural objects and the law

Chapter 6. Increasing protection?

6.1. Hard law international instruments

Box: Five generations of conflict researchers, a critical view
Box: The relevance of two conventions
Box: Cases dealt with by the ICPRCP

6.2. Soft law international instruments

6.2.1. Instruments for the repatriation of human remains

Box: Incidental returns of colonial human remains
Box: Return refusals for colonial human remains
Box: Successful repatriation of Maori heads

6.2.2. Instruments for the restitution of Nazi-looted art

Box: Four soft law instruments for dealing with Nazi-looted art
Box: Principles for dealing with colonial cultural and historical objects
Box: Overlap Second World War-looted and colonial cultural objects

6.2.3. A human rights and a justice perspective

Part IV
Ambiguities between the Netherlands and Indonesia

Chapter 7 The 1975 Joint Recommendations

7.1. Cultural heritage policy until 1949

7.2. Negotiations between 1949 and 1975

Box: Papua culture in safety
Box: Early returns to Indonesia

7.3. Towards an agreement

Box: Luwu insignia

7.4. Dynamics of the agreement’s implementation

Appendix: Joint Recommendations by the Dutch and Indonesian Team of Experts, concerning Cultural Cooperation in the field of Museums and archives including Transfer of Objects

Chapter 8 New insights into the Joint Recommendations

8.1. New research findings

Box: Thomas Raffles and Indonesia’s heritage
Box: Return of Diponegoro’s pilgrim’s staff
Box: Evidence of migration of objects in the first period
Box: The missing kris of Diponegoro

8.2. The 1975 agreement: lessons for other bilateral negotiations

Box: Returns to Indonesia 1949 - 1978

Part V
Approaches in other bilateral agreements

Chapter 9 The 1970 agreement between Belgium and Congo

9.1. Cultural policies up to independence

Box: Lucien Cahen, director with two hats

9.2. Deliberations and transfer of objects

Box: Repatriations and gifts to Congo

Chapter 10 Nordic model for Denmark, Iceland and Greenland?

10.1. Scandinavian colonialism

10.2. Danish colonial collecting
Box: Cultural objects from non-Scandinavian colonies

10.3. Ancient sagas back to Iceland.........................................................155

Box: Repatriation by Denmark to Faroe Islands

10.4 Peculiar agreement with Greenland...................................................157

Chapter 11. Melanesian model for Australia and Papua New Guinea?.............161

11.1. Colonial collecting in Papua New Guinea.........................................162

Box: Papua New Guinean objects in foreign museums

11.2. The process of return......................................................................165

Box: Returns to Papua New Guinea

Chapter 12. The Benin Dialogue (2010 - .....)..............................................170

12.1. Dispersal over Europe and North America.........................................171

Box: Benin treasures in the Netherlands

12.2. Prelude to the dialogue....................................................................173

Box: Return requests between 1972 and 2008

Box: Returns between 1937 and 2014

12.3. The dialogue.....................................................................................175

12.4. Elements for the model.....................................................................177

Appendix: Benin Plan of Action.................................................................181

Part VI New insights, a new approach.........................................................184

Chapter 13 The neglected effect of colonialism.............................................185

13.1. Towards an overview of the colonial one-way traffic.........................185

13.2. Overview of returns so far...............................................................189

Box: Two return offers rejected

13.3. Returns and other categories of contested objects.............................192

Chapter 14 Model for negotiating the future of colonial cultural objects....194

14.1. The seven phases............................................................................194

14.2. The four general guidelines.............................................................198

Box: Phases and General guidelines for negotiating the future of colonial cultural objects

Sources.......................................................................................................204

Summary..................................................................................................231

Samenvatting.............................................................................................236