Table of Contents

Chapter 1. General Introduction

Theoretical Framework ................................................................. 9
Overview of The Current Thesis .................................................... 16

Chapter 2. Socio-Cultural Factors as Antecedents of Cross-Cultural Adaptation in Expatriates, International Students and Migrants: A Review

Abstract .......................................................................................... 21
Theoretical Approaches to Cross-Cultural Adaptation ....................... 24
What is Universal about Cross-Cultural Adaptation? ......................... 26
Methods ......................................................................................... 31
Findings ......................................................................................... 37
Discussion ...................................................................................... 47
Limitations ...................................................................................... 57
Implications for Research ................................................................. 59
Final Remarks ................................................................................. 63

Chapter 3. Social-Contextual Antecedents of Cross-Cultural Adaptation: A Meta-Analysis

1988-2014 ....................................................................................... 65
Abstract ......................................................................................... 66
Adaptation in Theory: The Universalistic Approach .......................... 68
Research Practice: A Group-Centered Approach ............................... 71
Social-Contextual Antecedents of Adaptation. What Do We Know from Previous Reviews

Overview of the Current Study

Methods

Results

Discussion

Limitations

Conclusions

Implications for Adaptation Research

Chapter 4. Protective or Harmful? Exploring the Ambivalent Role of Social Identification as a Moderator of Intergroup Stress in Sojourners

Abstract

Perceived Discrimination and Intergroup Threat as Sources of Sojourner Stress

Ingroup Identification as a Coping Resource

The Present Study

Methods

Results

Discussion

Limitations

Conclusions and Implications for Research and Practice

Chapter 5. The Neglected C of Intercultural Relations. Cross-Cultural Adaptation Shapes Sojourner Representations of Locals

Abstract